

Double Major in Sociology and Criminology

You can choose to combine course work in both Sociology and Criminology to complete a double major. This option allows you to take additional course work in our department while creating a curriculum that focuses on two distinct disciplines. Typically, a double major in Sociology and Criminology can be completed within the credit hours required to graduate.

If you are interested in pursuing a double major in Sociology and Criminology, please take some time to learn about both areas by reading the Sociology and the Criminology major handouts. After researching the possibility of double majoring, visit with an academic counselor in the Undergraduate Student Services Office in Sociology to map out a curriculum plan that is right for you. Transfer students must complete at least half of their major course work for each major at Ohio State.
